Status Update from Special Servicer

August 2017 - Works on site have mainly paused due to the aftermath of the fire at Grenfell Tower in London. At the request of the Tenants, the contractor has undertaken to provide further information on the cladding specification and installation. It has been confirmed that the solid panels (as opposed to the majority which are glass) are of aluminium but, unlike Grenfell Tower do not involve the use of aluminium composite material which has a plastic core. The Contractor, with its advisers, have had meetings with those advising the Borrower and Tenants to discuss concerns and provide information, the latest meeting being held on 3 August. Unfortunately, given the threat of criminal charges arising out of the current police investigations as to the causes of the spread of the fire at Grenfell Tower, material manufacturers are reluctant to provide relevant information due to concerns arising in respect of other buildings. Additionally, the authorities are focusing investigations and remedial action on residential buildings. The original and replacement cladding is also firestopped at each floor and the original cladding was removed in 2003 as part of the original refurbishment.

November 2017 - Following retesting, one type of insulation being used in the re-cladding of the building has been reclassified as Medium Risk rather than the Low Risk classification it had at the time it was specified. An alternative solution has been designed and is currently under discussion with representatives of the Borrower and its tenants. The latest indications are that as a result of work on site having to stop following the Grenfell Tower fire and the need to redesign some elements, the works are now expected to complete during autumn 2018.

February 2018 - The contractors and their designers and specialist manufacturers continue to work up a solution to the cladding issues arising from the Grenfell Tower incident. This will involve replacing some of the replacement cladding already installed, due to the reclassification referred to last quarter. At the same time the contractor is in discussion with the tenants concerning the ability to resequence the work in order to complete the remainder of the work in shorter time frame than otherwise allowed once the works restart. The contractor is still stating that the works will be completed during 2018. The Special Servicer and the Borrower are actively considering an appropriate realisation timescale but this will depend on greater clarity as to the start date for the remainder of the works and the rectification of the replacement cladding referred to above.
